The Guardian

Durban, Justin R. (ASCAP)

I push through the crowd without looking back
To leave you behind took all that I had
And maybe I'm wrong, I might be sorry
But what kind of fool would hope for a change
Then write a new word on a page that is stained
And ruined by a lie you shouldn't have told me
I'm the guardian, I am the sole protector
Of a heart that's been abused
I won't let love do me in again
I can't just run to the light or the fire and jump in
Risk a poison kiss just to have my thirst unquenched again
Let love do me in
I swallow the urge to call out your name
The need crashes in, I brace for the wave

And pray it will pass, not take me under
'Cause I'm the guardian, I am the last defense for My weakened heart that still wants you
I won't let love do me in again
I can't just run to the light or the fire and jump in
Risk a poison kiss just to have my thirst unquenched again
Let love do me in
I'm the guardian, I am the sole protector
Of a heart that's been abused
I won't let love
Risk a poison kiss just to have my thirst unquenched again
Let love do me in
