

Long Way To Letting Go

Marie Hines

Funny how the little things
Can stake a claim in memory
And cheat time to last a hundred years I swore that I'd be strong enough
To drop my heart and pick it up
And make the great escape without a tear I'm so naive And I hold my breath a little too long
And you were quick to carry on
And I'm learning in the afterglow
It's a long way
A long way to letting go Waiting on eventually
Where you'll become my history
And I'll begin to rebuild the walls I'll forget to mention you
And wish that you were lonely too
And never ache, missing your calls I'm so naive And I hold my breath a little too long
And you were quick to carry on
And I'm learning in the afterglow
It's a long way
A long way to letting go Was looking easier ideally
And I falter at my hesitation's end
Close my eyes as I begin the countdown,
Reach for breath, I'm counting down
But I hesitate at ten And I hold my breath a little too long
And you were quick to carry on
And I'm learning in the afterglow
It's a long way
A long way to letting go
