Don't Walk Away

Bethany Joy Lenz

I remember the days, you are my life I remember the days, I'm sorry for everything I remember the days when I had no hope I remember the mornings when I didn't get up There are so many things that I'd like to do You are my life, it should have been you I'm trying to do what I've been told But I think too much of what I can hold Baby, let me explain, I want you to stay I'm sorry for everything, please don't walk away Pump up the volume I want to hold you, I want to touch your skin Hearing you breathe Those simple things are carrying me on And now I know why you're leaving Open my door tonight Give me some time to set things right Don't leave me tonight I remember the days when I had no hope I remember the mornings when I didn't get up There are so many things that I'd like to do You are my life, it should have been you I'm trying to do what I've been told But I think too much of what I can hold Baby, let me explain, I want you to stay I'm sorry for everything, please don't walk away Pump up the volume Don't walk away Don't walk away
