

Who Would Have Thought

Darren Hayes

Nobody told you that a heart is like a deep, deep freeze
So many lies, so much of it broken
And nobody told you deep within a well so cavernous
That maybe I could shed some light on
Who would've thought it could be amazing
Who would've thought the tiny courageous
Who would've thought that love so belated
Could save me and bring me back to you?
And nobody told you there'd be days of silence that no one heard
Rivers swells and overwhelms you
And nobody told you deep within a heart so ravenous
That maybe I could spare a beat for
Who would've thought it could be amazing
Who would've thought the tiny courageous
Who would've thought that love so belated

Could save me and bring me back to you?
I had to find you, had to let you know
That you weren't alone
And we didn't make the rules
I had to find you, had to get right back to you
I know I had to find you, had to let you know
That you weren't alone that, that we didn't make the rules
I had to find you, had to get right back to you
It's always been you
Now tell me who would have thought it could be this amazing
Now, who would have thought the tiny courageous
Tell me, who would've thought that love so belated
Could save me and bring me back to you?
