A Closeness

Dermot Kennedy

Keeping bright eyes focused on the coastline waiting for you.
Isn't she all us pining for that last kiss of permanent truth?
a means to get through.
Maybe we'll cry whilst hopeful when we think about the past being cruel...
We got a thought for those who start to think of love as the pursuit of a fool, it's a palace from ruin.
Deep into the night eyes closed and heart swolen with my loving for you Solid embrace, kind face and then the hurt starts leaving the room, followed by ghouls Sometimes it's open wide and lights, a road, at night you've got a heart like the moon Gather courage if you're doing something,
do it,
cause she got to go soon
If i could now,
I'd never tell you not to love her
However, leaving her alone,
away from her home
That ain't no promise cracking over time
A private corner of Roma, don't shadow the light, wait, good love grown
If i could now... If i could now... If I could now... If I could now...
If i had you now
So keep the bright eyes focused on the coastline waiting for you, don't give me that "bye bye baby" when the night moves into black from the blue, the next you've been through.
Just give me that wide smile, made from pouring song into hearts of the doom You catch the cold heart staring at water, remember you flew
If i could now, I'd never tell you not to love her, however leaving her alone, away from her home
That ain't no promise cracking over time
A private corner of Roma, don't shadow the light, wait, good love grown
If i could now... If i could now... If I could now... If I could now...
If i could now, I'd never tell you not to love her,
however leaving her alone,
away from her home
That ain't no promise cracking over time

A private corner of Roma,
don't shadow the light, wait, good love grown So say what you want, dear, but The courage was one, with the way that you spoke, here, when the dreaming was done.
