

No Horizons

Slowtide

To my knees,
I gave all I could, all this life demands I've walked the road, but I fear the bends It's hard to please, Once you're down below, you can't expect amends and noone tells you, where it goes, where it ends with no horizons to explore I step outside my office door and wait for signs that tell me where to turn to shake the chore

Then the skies have opened up to me and out...came nothing at all and I can sense that subtle irony you hope, you try, you trip, you fall as the skies have opened up to me I knew there was no remorse surprises sometimes happen, but they can't be forced

I assume, I expect reward, every once in a while whoever's up there is leaving me in denial and so I ask, ask myself and everyone I know why I'm seeking, hunting high and low with no horizons left to find I take a view inside my mind so I can leave this tragic life behind
