

Stones

Lisbeth Scott

So little I can say to you,
I saw your heals dig in.

The blood that runs through two of us,
can't make a bridge between.

And so,
I can forgive,
these little stones,
won't push my home down.

And so,
I can forgive,
these little stones
I'll put my own down.

The one behind the angry face,
You love me back I know.

And maybe in another place,
you've let that feeling show.

And so,
you will forgive,
these little stones,
that I have thrown.

And so,
we can forgive,
these little stones,
that humans throw.
