

Crickets in the Rain

Allo Darlin'

Back in 1992
sometimes dreams really did come true I kissed you in a swimming pool Your lips were sweet from the juicy fruit And later is a refrain I heard crickets singing in the rain And the weather with you floating thru flourescent blue lights in the haze And nothing feels the way it did before and I am grateful for that The truth is when I realized I loved you it was like everything I had ever lost had come back Drivin round in your car Start to feel a little older And somehow I learned to never accept the things that I didn't deserve Walking past the reservoir and the place where he fell when he saw the stars I tried to hold on tighter to you but I felt you slip thru my grasp
And nothing feels the way it did before
and I am grateful for that
had come back
And the night is warm you turn a sprinkler on There's an apricot sky over the city lights And I have a sense that somehow this will end and I am going forward never to go back again
And nothing feels the way it did before
and I am grateful for that

it was like everything I had ever lost...
and I am grateful for that
I saw you in a carpark reading Joan Didion in the dark it's easy to see where things begin it is harder to see where they end
