Where You Used To Sleep

John Ralston

Now the windows are black
And the lock's on the door
And my copied key
I can't use anymoreStrangers walk through your room
They're all looking to score
They don't ask any questions
About who lived here beforeWhere you used to sleep
Where you used to sleep
Where you used to sleep
Where you used to sleepI hope these curtains catch fire
I wanna burn it all down
All dried and empty like we are
Since you live undergroundWhere you used to sleep
Where you used to sleep
Where you used to sleep
Where you used to sleepDo you ask to be forgiven
For all the times that you've been missing?
Do you ask to be forgiven?
Since you never sleep, where you used to sleep
Since you never sleep, where you used to sleep
