Heaven and Hell

Wild Colonials

What goes on inside your head, walking slowly towards the night?
Thereâ€™s nothing wrong with me you said.
You kept me spellbound by the hour.
And I tried, tried with all my might.
And I tried, tried with all my might.

Did he let you down?
Did you want too much?
Did he steal your heart, when you felt his touch?
Did he let you down?
Did you want to run?
Did he steal your heart, when you felt his touch?

I saw you again the other day, walking past into the night.
Thereâ€™s nothing wrong with me you said;
Think I just saw the light.
And I tried, tried with all my might.
And I tried, tried with all my might.

Did he let you down?
Did you want too much?
Did he steal your heart, when you felt his touch?
Did he let you down?
Did you want too much?
Did he steal your heart, when you felt his touch?

Well Iâ€™ve been to heaven before; and I know the feeling well.
The only thing I can say to you: Thereâ€™s always a heaven, where thereâ€™s a hell.

Did he let you down?
Did you want too much?
Did he steal your heart, when you felt his touch?
Did he let you down?
Did you want too much?
Did he steal your heart, when you felt his touch?

Did he let you down?
Did you want too much?
Did he steal your heart, when you felt his touch?
Did he let you down?

Did you want too much?
Did he steal your heart, when you felt his touch?
Did he let you down?
Did you want too much?
Did he steal your heart, when you felt his touch?
