

The Piper's Song

Gypsy & The Cat

In the night, I see a face that's in the dark
Through his eyes I see a light a shiny gold.
And this man he walks alone, singing songs of victory
When he sleeps, there's a struggle and the light begins to fade

Heaven tells the past; all he had, love and fear
He was stronger then, all he had was loving hands
Then one day the thunder struck, evil tears run down his face
And a change good to bad, good to bad

Where to run
Are you there, are you there
In the winter sun, he's dancing in the wind
Where to run
Are you there, are you there
In the wilderness look and you will find him

A mother weeps a child sleeps their broken hearts
Are bleedin' wine, just passing time, their horror shows
There at his grave at violet creek
The place where he began to seek
The evil tide that would dissolve him of all good that stood within

Heaven tells the past; all he had, love and fear
He was stronger then, all he had was loving hands
Then one day the thunder struck, evil tears run down his face
And a change good to bad, good to bad

Where to run
Are you there, are you there
In the winter sun, he's dancing in the wind
Where to run
Are you there, are you there
In the wilderness look and you will find him

Thunder thunder in the town
Thunder waiting for a sound
Tonight tonight we sing the piper's song

Thunder thunder in the town

Thunder waiting for a sound
Tonight tonight we sing the piper's song

Where to run
Are you there, are you there
In the wilderness look and you will find him

Where to run
Are you there, are you there
In the winter sun, he's dancing in the wind

Where to run
Are you there, are you there
In the wilderness look and you will find him

Tonight tonight we sing the piper's song

Lyrics powered by lyrics.tancode.com written by LIONEL TOWERS, XAVIER BACASH
Lyrics Â© AMCOS (AUSTRALASIAN MECHANICAL COPYRIGHT OWNERS SOCIETY)

Lyrics provided by <https://damnlyrics.com/>