Take Aim

Tomorrow's Finest

I never thought that things would be this way
Iâ€™ve grown accustomed to how much these burdens weigh Constantly battling for some sort of peace or Relief from this madness
So beautifully tragic

Where do I go from here
Constant reminders of the things I fear
And your words draw me back into

This back and forth we know so well
Youâ€™ve got the worst of intentions I can tell
I wish I could get your words out of my mind
And leave every memory of you behind

Hope lost in the blink of an eye
I knew we couldnâ€™t change the end even if we tried
Biting bullets never was my strong suit
Quit taking aim

I fell for lies that could only come from you
My peace of mind is what I held onto
And were spiraling into

This back and forth we know so well
Youâ€™ve got the worst of intentions I can tell
I wish I could get your words out of my mind
And leave every memory of you behind

Hope lost in the blink of an eye
I knew we couldnâ€™t change the end even if we tried
Biting bullets never was my strong suit
Quit taking aim

I know itâ€™s hard to believe
That everything you are is nothing that I want to be
I canâ€™t play your game

These days I find myself
Slipping farther and farther from what Iâ€™ve known

Back to a place I promised myself that I would never go again

I just hope you know
I fought this feeling for so long
Fighting the urge to let go but forgetting why weâ€™re holding on

Hope lost in the blink of an eye
I knew we couldnâ€™t change the end even if we tried
Biting bullets never was my strong suit
Quit taking aim

I know itâ€™s hard to believe
That everything you are is nothing that I want to be
I canâ€™t play your game
