

There is Only You

Smalltown Poets

Growing more uneasy
With every question asked
It seems You're jealous of my interests
And the graven things I've cast
Waking resolutions
Of twenty years or more
That I would disallow golden cows
My favorite anymore
Your wishes set in stone
I broke the first of ten
I cleared this temple out
Come take Your place again
There is only You, there is only You
Tiptoe from an awkward scene
Not fooling anyone
Am I dumb enough to kneel with my accusers
Or brave enough to run
Petty daggers bounce
Weakly off my back
I'm leaving breathless Gods
And secrets in my track
Your wishes set in stone
I broke the first of ten
I cleared this temple out
Come take Your place again
There is only You, there is only You
Believe me, there is only You, there is only You
To a thousand
Generations
Of faithful men
You have shown Your favor Lord
There is only You, there is only You
Believe me, there is only You, there is only You
There is only You, there is only You
There is only You, there is only You
There is only You, there is only You
There is only You

Songwriters

Kevin Breuner; Daniel Franklin Stephens Published by

KOALA MUSIC; SMALLTOWN POETRY Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>