

Cornucopia

Serj Tankian

I loved you in the sunshine
You chase the moon with a spearTardy afternoons in utopia
Kiss an ugly turtle and make it cry
Sever the head of cornucopia
We rape the earth and don't know why it strikesDo you believe in stormy weather, stormy weather
Hurricanes play musical chairs with homes and chattel
The whirling dervish tornadoes reek all disaster
Seaside tsunamis give and take, what's the matter?I loved you in the sunshine
You chase the moon with a spear
I pray that you will be all mine
You foam at the mouth and disappearSever the head of cornucopia
We fuck the earth and don't know why it criesDo you believe in stormy weather, stormy weather
Hurricanes play musical chairs with homes and chattel
The whirling dervish tornadoes reep all disaster
Seaside tsunamis give and take, what's the matter?I loved you in the sunshine
You chase the moon with a spear
I pray that you will be all mine
You foam at the mouth and disappearWe broke our pact
And away we go to another placeHome, where we call home
Why do we disfigure all the things that are so beautiful inside?
Where we compose the calamities for all to abide Microcosm, macrocosm are the same
What a lame gameDon't you think we're extraordinary?
Believing and seeing
Realizing the imaginary
Don't you? Don't you?
Yes, I think we're extraordinary
Being and living
Yes, I think we ought to marryWe broke our pact
And away we go to another placeI loved you in the sunshine
You chase the moon with a spear
I pray that you will be all mine
You foam at the mouth and disappear
