

Lay Down Your Guns (feat. The Living End)

Jimmy Barnes

You picked me up when I was down with nothing
And gave me something, I can't face the world without
You showed me just enough to fuel my fire
My desire, never wanna live without it Both of us need something like we had before
We can't keep fighting like this anymore
This love affair is breaking my heart All the pushing and the shoving
When we know that we ought to be loving
And the lying and the cheating
When we ought to be loving and squeezing
Come on, come on
Lay down your guns and surrender Remember days we thought would last forever
Nothing better but we let them slip away
'Cause in the end we make the bed we lie in
Let's start trying, what's the point of talking about it Never seems to make it better
If we can't get on together
Take a chance and try a brand new start
All the pushing and the shoving
When we know that we ought to be loving
And the lying and the cheating
When we ought to be loving and squeezing Come on come on Lay down your guns and surrender
Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>