

This Ol' Cowboy

The Marshall Tucker Band

Well I'm sittin' down in San Anton'
Waiting on an eight o'clock train
My woman left me here last night
Things ain't been quite the same I gotta get back to Dallas
And tie up a few loose ends
I'm gonna work a week make a hundred dollars
Oh and hit the road again So I don't want you to think that you're the first one
To leave me out here on my own
'Cause this ain't gonna be the first time
This ol' cowboy spent the night alone Well honey, I've been a fool but a bigger fool
I can't remember when I've been
Just to open up my heart
And let you walk right in But there's one thing in life
That ain't hard for me to do
That's as soon as I kiss the lips of another woman
I'm gonna forget all about you So, I don't want you to think that you're the first one
To leave me out here on my own
'Cause this ain't gonna be the first time
This ol' cowboy spent the night alone Lord, if you wrote all the woman's names down I know
And let me pick one out
I don't think, there'd be one in the whole bunch
Oh I'd give a hoot about So I don't want you to think that you're the first one
To leave this ol' boy out here on his own
No, it ain't gonna be the first time
This ol' cowboy spent the night alone
No, it ain't gonna be the first time
This ol' cowboy spent the night alone
