No One Cares to Hear

A Telemetry

how many times we're told control never ends
led down the path of lies to which they never bend to listen - to notice

all fail to heed
one follows - set direction like lambs to the sea

through all the ages
it's only game continued pain

no one cares to hear
a distant cry to fight
they lost their might

harvesting words once written exposed is ignorance buried in that shallow grave you lost that needed sense to wallow - to linger guided by the insane

one whisper - set reflection on this you must restrain through all the changes it's not to late

you must escape

no one cares to hear

a collective
must open it's inner sight

reveal disguises
that hold you down
and hide the light
