Parachute

Timothy B. Schmit

I see that shiny plane up in the steel gray sky
Movin faster than the speed of sound
It dont care about a thing, it just keeps passing by Oblivious to everything thats down
If I was on a cloud then I could hitch a ride
Thats how I would finally get to you
Id grab on to the wing and at the perfect time
Id open up my parachute.
Sail--ing thru the sky..Soar---ing way up high
Chorus:
When you think youve had enough of all this living on your own
And you feel youre just about to break in two
When youre stuck in overdrive and youre longing for home
Its time to change your attitudeAnd open up your parachuteSee the raindrops pounding on my windowpane
Tapping out their rhythms from above
They dont pay any mind to those alone withinthinking bout the ones they love
And 52 floors up above the city lights/stranded in my temporary nest
The hotel operator she says, have a good night
I lay down, close my eyes, and do my best
Fit--full sleepless nightsdream--in I can fly
Chorus:
When you think youve had enough of all this living on your own
And you feel youre just a-bout to break in two
When youre stuck in overdrive and youreAnd youre longing for home
Come down to earth and change your mood.Open up your parachute
(Instrumental Break)
Fit--full sleepless nightsdream--in I can fly
Chorus:
When you think youve had enough of all this living on your own
And you feel youre just a-bout to break in two
When youre stuck in overdrive and youre longing for home
Its time to change your altitude.and open up your parachute
Come down to earth and change your mood.hey, open up your parachute..
