

Fireproof

Against the Current

I was better off the night before I met you
But I was mesmerized and high on every word you spoke
You were born to run but your poison tongue won't save you
'Cause when you play with fire it all dissolves to smoke I hope your hands burn, when you touch her
I won't be the cure for the scars you've earned
You lit the fuse, thought I'd burn too
But you're playing with a heart that's fireproof Turn the whites behind those eyes
But I can feel it (I can feel it, I can feel it)
The kind of danger in the darkness written on your soul
If the brightest star can light the skies forever (forever)
How could you ever think you were invincible? I hope your hands burn, when you touch her
I won't be the cure for the scars you've earned
You lit the fuse, thought I'd burn too
But you're playing with a heart that's fireproof
I watch your flames rise, destroy your alibis
I should have warned you
You're playing with a heart that's fireproof
No more games, can't escape
You will always be my worst mistake
Gasoline, on your grave
Goin' down in flames, goin' down in flames, goin' down in flames No more games, can't escape
You will always be my worst mistake
Gasoline, on your grave
Goin' down, in, flames I hope your hands burn, when you touch her
I won't be the cure for the scars you've earned
You lit the fuse, thought I'd burn too
But you're playing with a heart that's fireproof
I watch your flames rise, destroy your alibis
I should have warned you
You're playing with a heart that's fireproof You're playing with a heart that's fireproof.

Songwriters

Chrissy Costanza, Dan Gow, Will Ferri Published by

Lyrics © PULSE PUBLISHING Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>