Prayer

Joyless

If my thoughts are lost up in the air
Would the wind bring it to you?
Over hills, over to where you are
Would you promise to be true?

And the leaves of the trees
They will whisper in the breeze
To hear the raindrops fall
And the flowers and weeds,
They will bring me to my knees
And pray that I will not recall

And the sun, won't you come?
Won't you come to me?
As I walk through the valley of this fantasy
And you'll find, that our mind is a one big shrine
Ask the world of its wondrousness and mysteries

And the rain, won't you come?
Won't you comfort me?
When I'm down, won't you break these chains and set me free?

Life is like a rainy day
Love's an easy game to play
Life is such a funny way
While we fade away ..
