

I Will Walk With You

Bruce Hornsby & The Range

A strong man feels weak in the still heat of the day
Nothing is black and white, just a hazy gray
There's a long lonesome sound in the distance calling back to me
 You look for some small reward
 Everybody wants a little more
 You could be the one at my door
 Someone I might've seen before
What I came here forEverything comes and goes
You try to believe but you never know
 Anyway the wind blows
 Baby, somewhere, sometime
 I will walk with you
Long way to go, the road winds on and on
You feel all alone, in the cold light of the dawn
And I know that it's warm by your side, but you're so far away
 There's always another wall
 Sometimes you feel so small
 You could pick me up when I fall
 Be the one to help me through it all
Be there when I callEverything comes and goes
You try to believe but you never know
 Anyway the wind blows
 Baby, somewhere, sometime
I will walk with youThere's always another wall
 Sometimes you feel so small
 You could pick me up when I fall
 Be the one to help me through it all
 Be there when I call
 Everything comes and goes
You try to believe but you never know
 Anyway the wind blows
 Baby, somewhere, sometime
 I will walk with you
