----spring

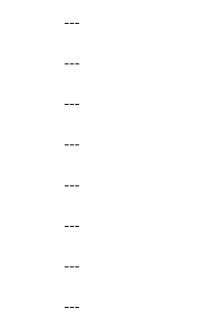

When spring arrives, And the grass shoots appear, We move to the spring camp, What a boundless earth, Such a long, long journey.

When summer arrives, Lush grass grows, We move to the summer camp, What a boundless earth, Such a long, long journey.

When autumn arrives, Plants wither and dry, We move to the autumn camp, What a boundless earth, Such a long, long journey.

When winter arrives, Plants dead and gone, We move to the winter camp, What a boundless earth, Such a long, long journey.
