

Liberated

Christina Antipa

Too unquestioning to see anything. find a way to run away from your own sight. always trusting in anyone who holds a gun at anything that you hate, because you can't bear to relate. do they believe their own lies? does it help them sleep at night? is it easier when you never have to fight to know that this is right? try for one week to not eat. hear bombs go off down the street. watch people die at your feet. hear children cry as they bleed. try to ignore the hatred. try to feel liberated. don't you feel liberated now? after all this time you think we'd now know, every time you're told not to question you should do so.... and they will fall. mark my words.
