Here Comes The Heartbreak

Emma Pollock

This is no accident
This is no lucky encounter
She's been standing in this spot for hours
Trying to think of something good to say
She thinks she might be wrong
Could you just tell her the way to go?
If you happen to be going there, too
Could she maybe get a ride with you?
So soon, she never thought that she could find another
When in reality you really should take cover
Here comes the heartbreak, Here comes the end of days
She, she hopes that you can lose your faith together
She needs some company when losing it forever
Here comes the hollow, Here comes the life she knows
She needs new scenery
She needs a brighter reflection
Just a new excuse to stay indoors
With a little time to settle scores

And for the first few months
You think you've never been happier
How could anything as this could change?
How could anything be rearranged?
So soon, she never thought that she could find another
When in reality you really should take cover
Here comes the heartbreak, Here comes the end of days
She, she hopes that you can lose your faith together
She needs some company when on losing it forever
Here comes the hollow, Here comes the life she knows
The life she knows
She needs some company when losing it, When losing it
Give her some company when losing it, When losing it
Oh, Oh, Oh, Oh
She needs to lose your faith together
She needs to lose your faith together
She needs some help to pull the trigger
