

Talk About It

Mullen, Nicole C.

The clock don't stop and the monkey sits on my back never know when it will attack will i pull through or will i fall i try to stand tall humility hits the floor is this to much for me to absorb or can i take just a little more Nobody knows, nobody cares Vanity grows when love disappears And then you wanted to talk about it i think you wanted to see what i would say i said I'm happy to live with out it for a couple of days. rightly so do i have my self to blame decisions of the past have they come back at last and the booze don't help it encourages what i felt, memories of the past lets see if i can add to what I've lost Don't go to sleep I've got a whole lot to say I've got to figure this out I've got to get me away so i don't live in the dark, leave the wrong mark give me a ride I'm going back to the start. we're living in a world thats turning slow a town with too many roads we're living around.
