

Walking for Two Hours

The Twilight Sad

Why do they come when you're always raining?
Why can't they make a sound?
And seeing the other ones fall back down
Because you're so far from home and you're wailing
Why do they come when you're always raining?
And why can't they make a sound?
And seeing the other ones fall back down
Because you're so far from home and you're wailing
You're so far from home and you're wailing
And watched it grow in a small dark corner
And why can't they make a sound?
And watching the other ones fall back down
And I've watched you go cold and there's no tears left
And why do they come when the light stops raining?
And where have the colors gone?
And wiping their way across and now it's all gone
Because you're so far from home and you're wailing
