

The Easy Part

Chuck Wicks

Sometimes love aint enough
And theres times just giving up is alright
No matter how much you want it to work
Someones gonna get hurt Sometimes it aint about whos wrong
And as bad as you wanna hold on
The right thing to do is to get out right now
Before its too late And the hardest part of leaving is picking up the keys
And finding the nerve to start that car
The first night is the longest, youre waking up alone
And you find out how strong you really are
But the rest is the easy part Before long, the phones gonna ring and youll want
To answer his call, but girl dont
Have the same conversation over and over
So let it be over The hardest part of leaving is picking up the keys
And finding the nerve to start that car
The first night is the longest, youre waking up alone
And you find out how strong you really are
But the rest is the easy part Theres an open road, theres a life ahead
But even though you cant see it yet
Ooh, just take a chance Pick up your keys, oh, and find the nerve
Yeah, start your car, the rest is the easy part Yeah, the hardest part of leaving is picking up the keys
And finding the nerve to start that car
The first night is the longest, youre waking up alone
And you find out how strong you really are
But the rest is the easy part Rest is the easy part

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnlyrics.com/>