Thousand Years of Oppression

Amon Amarth

He hung on the windswept world tree

Whose roots no one knows

For nine whole days, he hung there

Pierced by Gugnir, his spearSwimming in pain, he peered into the depths

And cried out in agony

Reaching out, he grasped the runes

Before falling back from the abyssHe gave himself unto himself

In a world of sheering pain

So that we all may live our lives

By the wisdom that he gainedYou doubted him and spread their lies

Across the world with sword in hand

You raped our souls and stole our right

All for the words of mild-mannered manYou listened to mild-mannered god

And put your faith in deceitful words

Your powertrip was paid by blood

In kindness' name, you spilled our bloodI refuse to submit

To the god you say is kind

I know what's right and it is time

It's time to fight and free our mindsLet me die without fear

As I have lived without it

So shut your mouth and spare my ears

I'm fed up with all your bullshitAfter a thousand years of opression

Let the berserks rise again

Let the world hear these words once more

"Save us, oh Lord from the wrath of the Norseman"Our spirits were forged in snow and ice

To bend like steel forged over fire

We were not made to bend like reed

Or turn the other cheekHe grasped the runes, they're ours to use
