

So Serene

The Blood Divine

...And I thought, "So haunting, is the grey mist" As today's dawn brings tears to my eyes (though they are tears of the harsh wind)
So painful are these thoughts
Of sombre hopes for absolute rest... That I feel so surreal (and so serene) Ah... that silver Queen Her cool rays reach down to me
And I breathe one last sigh
As I remember those torturous days (When we suffered) The pain...
It is the scars that brought us together (Now we are healing, now we are recovering
And you're falling deeper and deeper Within yourselves Ah... serenity It is threats to trinity that inspired me Winter's grace, in a cold embrace
It feeds me... That is why I am feeling so serene As today's dawn brought tears to my eyes (tears not of woe)
So painful are these thoughts
Of sombre hopes for absolute rest
You know I feel so serene As the grey mist dies away to silent deserted hills
I bury my head in my hands The faint echoes of false belief Are heard no more And are crying for me in the far.
