

Reactor

Fractures

You could say these mistakes stem from something greater
I replace but now I faulted
Now we felt like common sense
It seems somehow I've drifted
But you won't stay, and I won't break you Did you suspect, how did you not see?
My eyes were hiding marks along my back
And I promise you, should I fall or stay?
The circumstance, pretend it's not for you
And I won't pretend, I cannot bend the truth
Caught in the traction
Caught in the physical
Caught like a crazy fool
And I didn't mean it
Here's my fault
Couldn't resist it
Couldn't resist the touch
Those fingers round my throat
Maybe I wished it, maybe I willed it on and I'm feeling so exposed, the touch of her lips and Tempering kiss and when
The heat melts off my clothes
Blow out emission, already distant now
Breaking the compound, I was led so blindly
My fault, to wonder, I found how to settle it
The damage straight, the self-restraint
The least I answer for Your common sense, of what's been resist
Was kind
And I didn't mean it
Here's my fault
Couldn't resist it
Couldn't resist the touch
Those fingers round my throat
Maybe I wished it, maybe I willed it on
and I'm feeling so exposed, the touch of her lips and Tempering kiss and when
The heat melts off my clothes

Blow out emission, already distant now
I was missing, I was somewhere inside myself
I was reeled in, I was partial to my fate
I was missing, I was found out with someone else
I was distant, who knew it could
And I didn't mean it
Here's my fault
Couldn't resist it
Couldn't resist the touch
Those fingers round my throat
Maybe I wished it, maybe I willed it on
and I'm feeling so exposed, the touch of her lips and Tempering kiss and when
The heat melts off my clothes
Blow out emission, already distant now

Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnyrics.com/>