The Waiting Game

Squeeze

I heard the stomping of feet dancing
On the wooden floor upstairs
I wasn't in the mood for laughing
So I sat silent in my chairThere was someone missing I knew
Outside there fell the rain
Where had she gone, what could I do
I played the waiting gameThe cigarette smoke was annoying
My mood was fit for a bath
A drink couldn't oil my expression
Nothing could make me laughI was worried out of my head
I was in such a state
What's keeping her, where has she gone
I played the waiting gameWhen you love someone
You worry when they're late
When you love someone
You know the time it takes
To play the waiting gameThe music got louder and louder
From the wooden floor upstairs
I played with a handful of peanuts
When I saw her standing thereMy mood leapt right out of the bath
She had got stuck in the rain
Her coat dripped on a hanger
Playing the waitingI couldn't understand her
Playing the waiting
Seemed like I'd wait forever
Playing the waiting game
