

Sunspots In the House of the Late Scapegoat

Modest Mouse

It was on the rotating eyes
It was all on the same postcard
It was all on the same damn shirt
Said to sleep in the same Sear's camp houseIt was all in the great state parks
It was all on the same Greyhound
It was all so many miles
Beneath the dirty brown dirtTwenty miles down the islands
The biggest mall on Earth
It was all in the same rest stop
It was wall on the same damn shirtIt was all on the same Greyhound
SunspotsIn the house of the late scapegoat
Be aware, the paint's still peeling
All muscle cars made of lead
I got myself a fine, fine, fine, fine friendIt was all in the next gray ghost
It was all in the same damn place
The parts to pound attractive
Your feeling you oweOn your size is bleeding
Sunspots
