

Dusk 'til Dawn

Glaiza De Castro

looked again at you today and liked the person that i saw this is how i wanted you to be you played the game from dusk 'til dawn you took the chance and risked it all are you a better version of me? it's funny how i have to feel with one's ideal the other's real so tell me is this how i'm supposed to be you tried to follow what is right tried everything to win the fight can we overcome this ruleless nighti open up my eyes and see the rules are there to set me free i keep on chasing but the world won't let me be they break me now but i'm still here this light inside won't disappear believe that my love is meant for something real burning desires resilient minds are up against your wall content in silence in the end would you rather have it all but they don't mind so what's to hide we've heard it all before i guess there's just one knocking at your doori open up your eyes and see the rules are there to set us free you keep on chasing but the world won't let you be they break you now but you're still here this light inside won't disappear believe that your love is meant for something real and everytime you feel the fall we get back up, we face, we roll disguised in blackness fate anew the sun will rise to wash it through together we can see it coming the colours of once wilted end will soon be walking on a dream again i open up our eyes and see the rules are there to set us free we keep on chasing but the world won't let us be they break us now but we're still here this light inside won't disappear believe that our love is meant for something real
