

Coming Home

Iron Maiden

When I stand before you shining
In the early morning Sun
When I feel the engines roar
And I think of what we've done Oh the bittersweet reflection
As we kiss the earth goodbye
As the waves and echoes of the Towns become the ghosts of time Over borders that divide the Earthbound tribes
No creed and no religion
Just a hundred winged souls We will ride this thunderbird
Silver shadows on the earth
A thousand leagues away
Our land of birth To Albion's land
Coming home
When I see the runway lights
In the misty dawn
The night is fading fast Coming home far away
As the vapor trails alight
Where I've been tonight
You know I will not stay Curving on the edge of daylight
Till it slips into the void
Waited in the long night dreaming
Till the Sun is born again Stretch the fingers of my hand
Cover countries with my span
Just a lonely satellite
A speck of dust in cosmic sand Over borders that divide the Earthbound tribes
Flown the dark Atlantic
Over mariners' stormy graves We will ride this thunderbird
Silver shadows on the earth
A thousand leagues away
Our land of birth To Albion's land
Coming home
When I see the runway lights
In the misty dawn
The night is fading fast Coming home far away
As the vapor trails alight
Where I've been tonight
You know I will not stay solo To Albion's land

Coming home
When I see the runway lights
In the misty dawn
The night is fading fastComing home far away
As the vapor trails alight
Where I've been tonight
You know I will not stayComing home far away
When I see the runway lights
In the misty dawn
The night is fading fastComing home far away
As the vapor trails alight
Where I've been tonight
You know I will not stay*end*
