Keeping Secrets

Element 101

Writing in my diary
Right before I go to sleep
Trying to collect my thoughts
Of which are all in disarrayI write down love and hate
And everything that's in between
Thoughts of incompetence
Find their way into my routineSecrets concealed between the pages
Are the lens through which I see
Every time that I look back
I wish I acted differentlyBut when I remember then
There is no other way I see
Following, you follow me
Discovering who we will be
I see in you what you see in me
That makes us only the lonelyI want you to want to know me
I want you to call my name
Wish that you would know
There's more than meets the eye
There's more to findI want you to start asking questions
I want you to understand
There's so many people around
And once again, I'm getting lonelySecrets concealed between the pages
Are the lens through which I see
Every time that I look back
I wish I acted differentlyBut when I remember then
There is no other way I see
Following, you follow me
Discovering who we will be
I see in you what you see in me
That makes us only the lonelySecrets concealed between the pages
Are the lens through which I see
Every time that I look back
I wish I acted differentlyBut when I remember then
There is no other way I see
Following, you follow me
Discovering who we will be
I see in you what you see in me
That makes us only the lonely
