I Woke Up In New Orleans

Lucero

Advisory - the following lyrics contain explicit language:

I couldn't out drink anyone for nothing but I'd act like it 'til I puked or passed out Ohhh most nights I could get away with something these days I don't seem to stand so proud She asked me why can't I just stop drinking Come on babe, we both know it's too late ohhh for either one of us to still be thinking that I could live my life some other way
I woke up in New Orleans
angry at the world and all alone
I want you to know darling
I love you and I want to come back home
It was less than graceful ladies I've said we'll see I've drank with scoundrels, tramps and god damn fools Ohhh but I don't think that much care if it kills me living life the mans just passing through the last few years were stitched with floss and pipe dreams a quilt of poor intentions raveled out Ohhh but it was you who took me in and saved me it seems I've paid you back with slack and broken vows and I woke up in New Orleans
angry at the world and all alone
I want you to know darling
I love you and I want to come back home
I know it should have been easy its too late to change the path I chose this might not count for nothing just want you to know
I woke up in New Orleans
angry at the world and all alone
I want you to know darling
I love you and I want to come back home

I love you and I want to come back home
