

Boxing the Cold

Jer Coons

These are the days
Where everything around me, will change
Afraid of the memories I'll make I'll find exactly what it's gonna take,
for this heart to break

And it's okay
I realize why your eyes have turned away
Between the lines lie the words I can't say
I guess I'm gonna have to just find my way
And I can't hesitate

'Cause we were boxing the cold
'Cause our zippers were broke
And we both fell in love with the smell of the smoke
And there was so much snow, that we couldn't find the road
But I drove

I hear you say
You never know what you got til it goes away
And if you hold tight then she'll stay another day
Til your hopes and dreams begin to fray
And fade away
Yea-yeah yeah

'Cause we were boxing the cold
'Cause our zippers were broke
And we both fell in love with the smell of the smoke
And there was so much snow, that we couldn't find the road
But I drove

And we were boxing the cold
'Cause our zippers were broke
And we both fell in love, with the smell of the smoke
And there was so much snow, that we couldn't find the road
But I drove
And I drove
And I drove
And I drove
