

Goodbye Again

The Saw Doctors

Here we are, we're looking out to sea
Those waves will break long after you and me
When the swallows answer nature's ancient call
Oh, I love the seasons turning most of all

Our paths may cross, But God knows when
We may never get to say Goodbye again
I love the way you're thinking when you smile
For one moment you're a woman, and a child
Who knows what is or isn't meant to be
Well, you can ask the stars above, Don't ask me

Our paths may cross, But God knows when
We may never get to say Goodbye again
Our paths may cross, But it all depends
We may never get to say Goodbye again

And we make the most of these moments, while we can
We'll write each other's names here in the sand

So here we are, still looking out to sea
Those waves will break long after you and me
I love the seasons turning most of all
I wish we didn't have to say Goodbye at all

Our paths may cross, But God knows when
We may never get to say Goodbye again
No we may we never get to say Goodbye again
Goodbye Again. Whoa, Whoa!

We may never get to say Goodbye gain.

Lyrics submitted by Tom Gosselin.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnlyrics.com/>