The Silent Song

Marble Sounds

Each we blacking the stars
Right at the moment it gets dark
All interference fade away
We come down when the light up
And the embasement it creates
Is the cherry on the cake
We have lost the skill to wait
It's strange, to watch things are slowly dying
Now you're slowly growing tired
Of every question, every word
Don't be bothered to reply, the side
Says more than what you're saying now, loud
We shout and we don't give, to carry on
We thought that we agreed, to get along
We whisper when they're gone, we're strong
And silence is our bond
It feels like tears in love
When we're at quite
It leaves a lot to say, and that's alright
Impossible to stay, along
With the silent song.
