This Too Shall Pass

Justin Rutledge

when it's windy in the morning and your cloudy all day when the night arrives at last it just won't go away when you're eyes are sick with wonder and your heart is in a cast This too, shall pass.When the city turns to limp when you're waiting for a train when she welcomes you with pity in half an inch of rain when you're playing at 10:30 and if anyone should ask This too, Shall pass.This western call This too shall fall
These northern skies
These too shall rise
This way you feel
This too shall heal
This hour glass
This too shall pass.She loves me when i'm lazy and she loves me when i'm wild she loves me when i'm hazy and she loves me when i'm a child We figured out how to make a good thing last But this too, shall pass
This too, shall pass.
