Before We Fade

Tristam

If the road of truth is fine
Which one of us is out of line?
Although you say you can prove more
I can feel it down to my core
In a world where our word's gold
I sit and believe what I'm told
But in this blue world filled with bones
I'll just keep dancing on my ownIt's a useless waste of time
I don't care what's on your mind
The truth was never for us to find
We could lock horns all day
But really, who cares what we say?
We will be lost before we fadeI can almost hear it cry
This feeling you somehow deny
Just how do you fail to hear
The roaring, grinding of your gears?
Cause you didn't take the loss
Your future self honors the flaws
And some of us are wide awake
Watch as you are fixing your mistakesMy mind will understand
The subtle movements of the land
Within the limits of these chains
There's only so much to explain
One day, you will find this wall
The one that's infinitely tall
And as we move the hour hand
Are we just dancing in the sand?
