

Why

Bethany Dillon

This house is echoing
With the sound of You knocking at the door
But with three locks and the shades down
You are easy to ignore
And I've put You on like an old pair of shoes
I've put You off but now I need You
And why, this love that never leaves me
Why are You holding me tonight?
Can't deny this love that is given me
Why, this love never leaves
You're a good strategy when I need one
An angle when there is none
Like a doormat that always says 'Welcome'
No matter how much dirt I rub on
But when I am tired and run through

Look over this hill, I'm running to You
Why, this love that never leaves me
Why are You holding me tonight?
Can't deny this love that is given me
Why, this love never
Love, love, love, love, love, love, love
Why, this love that never leaves me
Why are You holding me tonight?
Can't deny this love that is given me
Why, yeah
Why? Why are You holding me
You holding me tonight?
I can't deny this love that is given me
Why, this love never leaves
