

The Rabbit, the Bat, and the Reindeer

Dr. Dog

Well, I don't want a thing to do with you kind
And I ain't got no time to kill on your dime
Strung up, hanging 'round
Looking like you're upside down Well, I ain't wanting to shed no blood, that's your crime
And I ain't wanting to sling no mud, I clean it up
You ain't what I'd call a friend
I wouldn't even if I could pretend
Man, you ain't like anybody else As night becomes the sun to rise
As dirt becomes the butterflies
As sure as though it always seems to stay the same And I'll be waiting anxiously
And I'll be falling fast asleep
And I'll be dreaming of the day the dream died No sticks, no stones could break my bones like you can
If I knew hate, I'd call it love for you, man
High up on the hill, cheaper than a dollar bill
Man, you ain't like anybody else Should we pretend that it's the end?
Are you my curse, are you my friend?
And if we got hit to the end of the road
Will you be there to carry my load? I'm getting it back with that terrible feeling
My vision is cracked, but it looks like it's healing
I'm getting it back like it's four in the morning
When the sun only shines as if been giving a warning I'm getting it back with the rest of the leap year
I'm keeping the rabbit, the bat and the reindeer
I'm getting it out, whatever I gotta keep in
I'm telling the truth, said it don't win with pretend Should we pretend?
Should we pretend?
Should we pretend?

Songwriters

TOBY LEAMAN, SCOTT MCMICKEN Published by

Lyrics © CHRYSLIS MUSIC GROUP Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnyrics.com/>