

Two Solitudes (Everyone's Love In the Air)

Level 42

I saw the longing in your eyes
But I failed to see the anguish
 You so cleverly disguised
 Your needs I clearly read
But I never knew your true intentions
 They were better left unsaid
 I brushed our tears aside
Thought I could wipe away the memoryBut couldn't push that far inside
 You came so full of regrets
 Your body still remembers
What your mind learnt to forgetLove is lost I've found
 When trust breaks down
Now we meet those two impostors just the same
 Always out of bounds
 When love comes round
Don't even have the strength to share the blameWe ride the train of events
 We never make our destination
 Never making any sense
You say you leave without regret
 But your body will remember
What your mind learns to forgetOne love. Two solitudes
 There's no common ground
 When trust breaks down
Thought everybody's love is in the air
 Always out of bounds
 When love comes down
Too scared to climb the wall of our despairLove is lust I've found
 When trust breaks down
Now we meet those two impostors just the same
 Always out of bounds
 When love comes round
Don't even have the strength to share the blameAnd the said thing is There's no end to this
Your tears are like the rain that beats the rain
 And I wake at dawn
 To find you gone
Don't even have strength to call you namerepeat chorus 2
