

Running Out of Time

Madrugada

One more early morning
One more late afternoon
Once more you're out in the wind
And once more you come in too soon It's a long road, oh man
And it's a hard road
You wanna make sure to make all the friends that you can make
You ain't worth much more to them
Than the worth of what you give
And the worth of what you take In this old ritual of compassion
Well, you just fail and fall behind
Now you're running
Seems to be running
You're running out of time You know it ain't love
No, you know it ain't love
Unless it's eating you alive
When you're in your bed at night No, you know it ain't love
You know there can't be no love
Unless it comes howlin' out of you
Then you know the time is right Ah you wait so long
And now you don't know
Now you don't know what to do
Except to pray for your love
To come returning on back to you You dry out with all of this bitterness and fear
And with every passing year
Nothing's really real to you
Except this pain that you feel You will come to realize
That you had your day
Someday oh so long ago
When somebody came a-calling at your door
And you pretend that you were not home Now you're running
You're running
You're running out of time

Songwriters

THOMAS, TIMMY /Published by

Lyrics © Sony/ATV Music Publishing LLC, Warner/Chappell Music, Inc. Song Discussions is protected by U.S.
Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by
<https://damnyrics.com/>