The Amity Affliction

There are parts of me
That have been lost at sea
I feel a constant pain, into eternity
Walk with my head down low
Into calamity
With arms outstretched
Will someone, someone, someone save me? I am a sinking ship
I am the anchor's deep
Sent to the ocean floor
In an eternal sleep
My heart is heavy, stone
My body, brittle bones
My mind, an endless storm
Out in the cold unknown 'Cause I've got to find my light again
My heart is beating fast
When will this ever end?
Can I find my way back home again?
This road I travel on
It never seems to end I ain't a hollow shell no more
I'm at the ocean floor, I'm at the ocean floor
My lungs are having [?]
Oh.
My lungs are screaming out
My lungs are having [?] I am a sinking ship
I am the anchor's deep
Sent to the ocean floor
In an eternal sleep
My heart is heavy, stone
My body, brittle bones
My mind, an endless storm
Out in the cold unknown 'Cause I've got to find my light again
My heart is beating fast
When will this ever end?
Can I find my way back home again?
This road I travel on
It never seems to end And once again you get back
And you rescued me
And I promised you that
I promised you that I'd melt

I promised you that I'd melt
My lungs are having [?]
Oh
Life is a failing questioning
And this is thanks to you my friend 'Cause I've got to find my light again
My heart is beating fast
When will this ever end?
Can I find my way back home again?
This road I travel on
It never seems to end
'Cause I've got to find my light again
My heart is beating fast
When will this ever end?
Can I find my way back home again?
This road I travel on
It never seems to end
