

Jesus & You

Matthew West

When the miles are too high for countin'
And the Hill's too steep to climb
When the world outside ain't making sense
And the truth's too lost to find
When the line's too blurred for seeing
And my wrong's too wrong to right
When I'm hanging by that final thread
And my strong's too weak to find
I hear a song sweet song, singing to my soul
I see a lighthouse in a hurricane, and it's leading me back home
When I think about the only things in life that pull me through
I hit my knees and thank the Lord for Jesus and You
Everyday I do
One is saving me in heaven
When I leave this world behind
And one gives me just a little taste
When she holds me late at night
They both give Grace, and it's amazing,
They both have healing in their hands
And it ain't easy, but they're both making me
A better man
I hear a song sweet song, singing to my soul
I see a lighthouse in a hurricane, and it's leading me back home
When I think about the only things in life that pull me through
I hit my knees and thank the Lord for Jesus and You
Everyday I do
Why you've got a ring around your finger
While he got scars on his hands
Why you both promised me forever
God I'll never understand
When I think about the only things in life that pull me through
I hit my knees and thank the Lord for Jesus and You
I hit my knees and thank the Lord for Jesus, Jesus and
You
Everyday I do
When I think about the only things in life that pull me through
I hit my knees and thank the Lord for Jesus and You
I hit my knees and thank the Lord for Jesus and You
