A Golden Exit

The Good Life

I can see the chill in the air between us
I can feel the winter coming, we're frozen in our stares
And we know there's a world outside of these insults and injuries
Maybe we're just too afraid to be oneI can feel the winter coming, I can feel the winter coming
I can feel the winter coming, I can feel the winter coming
I can feel the winter comingThe autumn sets a golden exit, the winter is waxing
That cold sun will shed no more warmth into our living rooms
Where we dream our dreams, where we wait for sleep
Maybe we'll wake up with golden wings
And fly over a city screaming, "Take me, take me"I woke up this morning to the silence of falling snow
These graces of beauty have left me so cold
I once had a heart but hearts are like snowflakes
And snowflakes they're somthering us
One warm touch and it melts, melts away
Maybe we'll get wings, maybe anythingJust anything to set us free, maybe we'll wake up, a golden exit
Must we always wait for sleep?

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/