

Western Shore

Ryan Bingham

You were all this needed to get you where you're going Tomorrow is the season, hold on the western shore!
And you're not the reason, nobody care to notice
They never saw you leaving cause they just don't know how to You gotta run and stare so you could feel the change
You gotta heal your heart so you could leave again another day!
You gotta live out loud with no one to fear
With no one around who ever bring you down or give you tears
Loud on the Western shore, you're no longer brave And there is no one needed to tell you what you're knowing
And only is believing, hold on the Western Shore!
So you could leave the darkness that always kept you sleepless
You can forget the place where the twisted hypocrites stop and stare You gotta run and stare so you could feel the change
You gotta heal your heart so you could leave again another day!
You gotta live out loud with no one to fear
With no one around who ever bring you down or give you tears
Loud on the Western shore, you're no longer brave You gotta heal your heart so you could leave again another day!
You gotta live out loud with no one to fear
With no one around who ever bring you down or give you tears
Loud on the Western shore, you're no longer brave Cause you're all that's needed to get you where you're going
Tomorrow is the season, now hold on the Western Shore
And now that are leaving, with nothing that you're owing
You can forget the streets stop and stare You gotta run and stare so you could feel the change
You gotta heal your heart so you could leave again another day!
You gotta live out loud with no one to fear
With no one around who ever bring you down or give you tears
Loud on the Western shore, you're no longer brave You gotta run and stare so you could feel the change
You gotta heal your heart so you could leave again another day!
You gotta live out loud with no one to fear
With no one around who ever bring you down or give you tears
Loud on the Western shore, you're no longer brave
