

Sensibility

Elizabeth Rose

When you shake off the feelings
It puts me back in the dark
Something was missing
Ripping, pull it apart
And you know, know it in yourself
You just take things as they come
And I could leave it in the past
But the good things never last
CHORUS:
The complexity in your head
In my reach, out of touch
I struggle to find my feet
Oh, another case of sensibility
I regret the double life I've led
In my thoughts, still a wreck
I want to believe myself
Oh, another case of sensibility
It's a part of my nature
To be on the move again
One way or another, I need my sanity
Trust me, take it in your stride
Shouldn't make you feel all right
Back to basics, the good life realise
To make it clear, crystal clear, to yourself
Then you push away, start to fade again
But maybe I should stay (CHORUS x2)
